ABOUT THE DIRECTOR
Lo Williams (she/her) is an actor, director, producer, and poet currently based in Chicago, Illinois. She values work presenting intersectional experiences with respect and humanity that caters to a variety of audiences in age, race, social class, and identity. As a passionate advocate and administrator, Lo strives to create and provide opportunities for new and underrepresented works to be explored on stage. When centering work around the community, she believes that making theatre in hopes that the “non-theatre person” will attend and be impacted is a reliable way to allow that intention to remain pure.

Lo has been involved in the development of world premieres of new Black theatrical productions in the capacities of producer, director, playwright, and actor, and she is a proud alumna of the inaugural class of the Chadwick A. Boseman College of Fine Arts at Howard University, having earned a BFA in Theatre Arts. Lo is also an alumna of the National Theatre Institute and the Lin Manuel Miranda Family Fellowship. Recent credits: Rent (Oregon Shakespeare Festival, Assistant Director), The Thing that Comes to the Basement (Ghostlight Theatre Ensemble, Director). Website: lowilliams.live. Babes With Blades Theatre Company produces theatre in venues located on the traditional homelands of the Council of the Three Fires: the Ojibwe, Odawa, and Potawatomi Nations. Many other tribes such as the Miami, Ho-Chunk, Menominee, Sac, and Fox also called this area home. This region that we now commonly refer to as “The Chicagoland Area”, has long been a center for Indigenous people to gather, trade, and maintain kinship ties. Today, one of the largest urban Native American communities in the United States resides in Chicago. Members of this community continue to contribute to the life of this city and to celebrate their heritage, practice traditions, and care for the land and waterways. If you are originally from outside of Chicago, you can discover who's traditional homelands you inhabited by going to Whose.Land.

BWBTc is one of less than 15% of Chicago theatre companies dedicated to representing marginalized voices through storytelling (and the only one that uses stage combat as a consistent storytelling tool.)

Our Mission

Babes With Blades Theatre Company uses stage combat to tell stories that elevate the voices of underrepresented communities and dismantle the patriarchy. Through performance, script development, training and outreach, our ensemble creates theatre that explores the wide range of the human experience, and cultivates broader perspectives in the arts community and in society as a whole.
